

This victim wishes to remain anonymous, however still have his story told.

On the 14th January this year I got the results from a DNA test I had carried out on my daughter, they came back that I was not her father. I have supported and loved her since the day her mother told me and both our families that we were pregnant. She was the little girl dressed in pink everyone had always wanted. She was the cushion that was going to soften the blow of losing my dad to his battle with cancer.

There was nothing she could have asked for that I didn't provide. My family and friends were over the moon I was going to have a daughter. Everyone came together and gave her mother presents and money for our daughter. I was at the birth and I was registered on the birth certificate. I was 100% led to believe I was her father.

On informing her mother and family that I had carried out a DNA test and I was not her father, we were met with denial and that they are a good family and not like this. Once she had told them the truth that she had a one night stand, all communication had stopped. I was told that because I'm the one disputing this then I should sort it out myself. Not the fact their daughter had lied and stolen thousands of dollars from a family, and she had already met someone and pushing the baby round in the pram I'd paid for.

This woman has fraudulently led me and my family to believe I was her baby's father.

She stood next to my father's deathbed and held his hand on another man's unborn child and said this is your granddaughter and we are naming her after your mother. She let my dad go in the ground holding a baby scan of another man's child and thinks that this is all ok and nothing to answer to and so do her family. I think it's absolutely disgusting, and they should at least have the decency to apologise for what she has done.

How could anyone lie to a dying man, lie to my mother and grandparents knowing what they are going through, lie to two small boys leading them on to believe they have a sister. How are you supposed to explain that to anyone, you couldn't even write this if you wanted to.

I've had to pay for legal advice, I've had to pay for court, I've had to pay for my name to be removed from a birth certificate. Not once have they offered to sort any of this out but tell everyone they are decent and good people. Stop playing the victims.
